Wednesday Disney Inks $7.4B Pixar Deal

Apple's Steve Jobs gains powerful new role in conglomerate

LOS ANGELES | The Walt Disney Co. said Tuesday it is buying longtime partner Pixar Animation Studios Inc. for $7.4 billion in stock in a deal that could restore Disney's clout in animation while vaulting Pixar CEO Steve Jobs into a powerful role at the media giant.

Disney's purchase of the maker of the blockbuster films "Toy Story and "Finding Nemo" would make Jobs Disney's largest shareholder. Jobs, who owns more than half of Pixar's shares and also heads Apple Computer Inc., will also join Disney's board.

Disney has co-financed and distributed

Pixar's animated films for the past 12 years, splitting the profits. But that deal expires in June after Pixar delivers "Cars," and it had once appeared the companies would not renew it amid friction between Jobs and former Disney CEO Michael Eisner. But the talks revived under Iger.

With Pixar, Disney gains a company that has produced a long-running string of animated blockbusters. Iger wants to strengthen Disney's animated features, the hallmark of the company since its founding and a steady source of characters for Disney's theme parks.

With Jobs, Disney also tightens its link with Apple Computer, the innovative technology company behind music and video iPods. Jobs could help Iger push his plans to marry films, TV shows, video games and other content to computers, iPods, handheld game consoles and cell phones. GARY GENTILE (AP)

Lettuce Be Reasonable

A Lower Nazareth, Pa., woman fined $173.50 for throwing salad greens out of her car says she doesn't understand the fuss. Dawn Higgins was cited Oct. 18 while outside a Wal-Mart after she and her daughters stopped at a McDonald's.

She said she pulled into a parking space to finish her meal but decided not to eat the half-dozen or so leaves atop her salad. "Lettuce comes from the ground, therefore it can go back into the ground," she said. "It's biodegradable, I didn't think I was doing anything wrong." After failing to appear in court, Higgins was convicted in absentia. (AP)

Jury Deliberations Begin in Case of Strangled Priest

A jury began deliberating Tuesday in the murder case against an inmate who claimed he was insane when he strangled child-molesting priest John Geoghan in the clergyman's prison cell. The jury got the case after prosecutors argued that Joseph Druce, 40, was a conniving killer who planned the slaying for weeks so he could be a "big shot" in prison. If convicted, Druce would receive a sentence of life in prison without parole. (AP)

Gonzales Presses Case for Spying

Attorney general draws protest at speech on wiretapping program

WASHINGTON | Attorney General Alberto Gonzales offered additional defenses of President Bush's domestic spying program on Tuesday, as the administration tried to redefine the warrantless surveillance in a way that undermines critics.

Speaking to students at Georgetown University law school, Gonzales said a 15-day grace period allowing warrantless eavesdropping under the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act demonstrates that Congress knew such surveillance "would be essential in wartime."

Gonzales was supplying legal arguments to the president's comments Monday that the effort should be called a "terrorist surveillance program."

Confronting Gonzales during his nearly half-hour speech were more than a dozen young people in the audience who turned their backs to him and held up for a banner for television cameras. The banner, loosely based on a Benjamin Franklin quote, read: "Those who would sacrifice liberty for security deserve neither."

Gonzales said the legal standard the administration uses in deciding whether to carry out surveillance on people with suspected al Qaeda ties is equivalent to the standard required for complying with the Fourth Amendment, which bans unreasonable searches and seizures

Gonzales also said the wartime program is limited in scope, and blamed the media for criticism.

"These press accounts are in almost every case, in one way or another, misinformed, confusing or wrong," said Gonzales.

Majority of Senators Support Alito

WASHINGTON | Supreme Court nominee Samuel Alito won commitments from a majority of senators Tuesday, assuring his eventual confirmation and a likely tilt of the court to the right.

On the same day Alito won a 10-8 party-line approval from the Senate Judiciary Committee, five Republicans announced that they would vote for his confirmation in the full Senate, pushing him over 50 votes in the 100-member chamber.

Fifty Senate Republicans, plus one Democrat, Ben Nelson of Nebraska, have publicly committed to vote for Alito through their representatives, interviews or news releases. No Republicans have opposed him and five have yet to say how they will vote.

One of Alito's supporters, Sen. Craig Thomas of Wyoming, announced after meeting with Alito in his Senate office. "He represents the kind of justice who will interpret the law with respect to the Constitution and not legislate from the bench. His judicial experience is second to none and I'm confident he will do an excellent job handling his constitutional responsibility," Thomas said.

Twenty Democrats are publicly opposing President Bush's pick to replace retiring Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, while the other 23 and independent Sen. Jim Jeffords of Vermont are still publicly undecided or refuse to say how they will vote on Alito's nomination.

The only way Democrats can stop the conservative judge now is through a filibuster, a maneuver they show little interest in.

White House Was Warned on Katrina

Bush administration delaying inquiry on response, Senators say

WASHINGTON | Senators lambasted the Bush administration on Tuesday for failing to heed devastating predictions from a hurricane preparedness test that began a year before Hurricane Katrina slammed into the Gulf of Mexico.

The top Democrat on the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee also accused the White House of trying to block or delay the panel's inquiry into the government's sluggish response to Katrina.

The preparedness exercise that began in July 2004, dubbed Hurricane Pam, warned that a Category 3 storm would overwhelm the New Orleans area with flood waters, killing up to 60,000 people and destroying buildings and roads. State and federal officials were concluding Pam's findings when Katrina, an actual Category 4 storm, roared ashore.

Senators say a 2004 exercise should have given officials an idea of the damage Katrina could cause in New Orleans.

"As a dry run for the real thing, Pam should have been a wake-up call that could not be ignored," said Sen. Susan Collins, chair of the Senate committee's examination of Pam's findings on Tuesday. "Instead, it is apparent that a more appropriate name for Pam should have been 'Cassandra' — the mythical prophet who warned of disasters but whom no one believed."

White House spokesman Scott McClellan said the administration is conducting a lessons learned review.

FBI: Clash On Mexico-U.S. Border

Official details standoff with men in military uniforms

SIERRA BLANCA, TEXAS | Men dressed as Mexican Army soldiers, apparent drug suspects and Texas law enforcement officers faced off on the U.S. side of the Rio Grande, an FBI spokesperson said Tuesday.

Texas Department of Public Safety troopers chased three SUVs, believing they were carrying drugs, to the banks of the Rio Grande during Monday's incident.

The FBI was not involved and referred requests for further details to U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement, officials said.

The Inland Valley Daily Bulletin of Ontario, California, reported Tuesday that the incident included an armed standoff involving the Mexican military, suspected drug smugglers and nearly 30 U.S. law enforcement officers. It said Mexican military Humvees were towing what appeared to be thousands of pounds of marijuana across the border into the United States. (AP)

Calif. Plane Crash Kills 4

Craft skidded off runway when landing, killing all on board

CARLSBAD, CALIF. | A twin-engine plane crashed and burst into flames while landing Tuesday, killing all four people on board, the Federal Aviation Administration said.

There were no reports of injuries on the ground

The jet-engine Cessna 560 was landing at McClellan-Palomar Airport on a flight from Hailey, Idaho, when it skidded off the end of a runway at about 6:40 a.m., said Mike Fergus, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman in Seattle.

It hit a shack that held the airport's instrument landing system equipment, Fergus said.

"All four on board were killed,"

he said.

Norman Boyd of Escondido saw the plane landing as he drove near the airport on his way to work.

The National Transportation Safety Board was sending a team to investigate the crash.

There was no immediate word on the victims' identities but authorities said the plane was registered to Goship Air LLC of Ketchum, Idaho. (AP)

Suits Over Diseased Body Parts Expected

Criminal probe set to begin in scandal over funeral home fraud

NEW YORK | Patricia Battisti had thought her back surgery in early 2005 was routine. A letter from her hospital nearly a year later made it clear she was wrong.

Battisti was informed that the cadaver bone that was implanted in her back may have been infected with various viruses — the result of what investigators say was a large-scale scheme in which corpses were cut up and body parts illegally sold.

The Long Island woman now claims she contracted syphilis from the bone and plans to sue. The hospital adamantly denies the allegation. But the case may be an early warning that the gruesome body parts scandal is going to lead to a lot of lawsuits. Authorities believe two men

paid off funeral homes so they could take bone and skin from the dead bodies.

The Brooklyn district attorney's office has opened a criminal case focusing on scores of funeral homes in the New York City area and hundreds of looted bodies. TOM HAYS (AP)

Palestinians Face a Turning Point

Battle between Fatah, Hamas too close to call as election arrives

GAZA CITY, GAZA STRIP | Thousands of police guarded ballot boxes Tuesday and rival militants pledged not to disrupt voting on the eve of the first Palestinian parliament election in a decade — a cliffhanger vote on whether to pursue peace or confrontation with Israel.

The battle between the ruling Fatah Party and its Islamic Hamas rival was sure to tilt the balance of a Middle East torn between reform and traditionalism. But concerns over corruption and unemployment also weighed on voters' minds.

"We hope to see change in the Palestinian Authority, that those who were stealing money will Hamas predicted victory, but pollsters said the race was too close to call, especially with many wild cards in play, including possible violence.

Despite the fierce rivalry, Hamas and Fatah signaled they are ready to work together. Palestinian leader Mahmoud Abbas has spoken to Hamas leaders about possible cooperation after the election, said Hamas spokesman and parliament candidate Mushir al-Masri. (AP)

Acting Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert delivers his first policy speech.

Israeli PM Draws New Priorities

Olmert says giving up parts of West Bank key to setting final borders

HERZLIYA, ISRAEL | Acting Prime Minister Ehud Olmert said Tuesday that Israel will have to give up parts of the West Bank to preserve a Jewish majority inside its borders, but would keep the main settlement blocs and Jerusalem.

Olmert, standing in for ailing Prime Minister Ariel Sharon at the annual Herzliya Conference, said the main challenge facing Israel is "setting the permanent borders of the state of Israel to ensure a Jewish majority."

The speech was the clearest indication of the direction Olmert, the front-runner in March 28 elections, plans to take Israel: out of most of the West Bank and toward a negotiated settlement with the Palestinians. But he also said Israel would never renounce its claims to Jerusalem and indicated there could be more unilateral withdrawals like the one from Gaza last summer.

In his first policy address, Olmert said Israel would have to make further pullbacks.

"The choice between allowing Jews to live in all parts of the land of Israel and living in a state with a Jewish majority mandates giving up parts of the land of Israel," Olmert said. "We cannot continue to control parts of the territories where most of the Palestinians live." (AP)

Kuwaitis Decide to Oust Ailing Emir

KUWAIT CITY | Kuwait's parliament and Cabinet ended an unprecedented leadership struggle within the ruling family on Tuesday, ousting the ailing emir and moving quickly to name the prime minister to take the throne in the oil-rich and steadfast U.S. ally.

The Cabinet appointment of Prime Minister Sheik Sabah Al Ahmed Al Sabah, half brother to the emir who died Jan. 15, still needs approval by parliament, where he was said to enjoy unanimous support. A vote was expected early next week.

It was a painful, even "black" day for a country where tribal honor and royal family prerogative run deep.

But it was also a clear sign of political maturity — if not full-blown democracy — which could have an impact in the region. (AP)

Investigator Says U.S. 'Outsourced' Torture

Probe into alleged CIA secret prisons fails to uncover hard evidence

STRASBOURG, FRANCE | The United States has developed a system for "outsourcing" torture, the head of a European inquiry into alleged CIA secret prisons said Tuesday, accusing European governments of turning a blind eye to breaches of human rights.

But Swiss senator Dick Marty's report failed to uncover tangible evidence proving clandestine detention centers existed in Romania or Poland as alleged by the New Yorkbased Human Rights Watch.

His interim report did not break new ground and largely repeated his previous claims that U.S. policies in the war on terror contravene international law.

Allegations the CIA hid and interrogated key al Qaeda suspects at Soviet-era compounds in Eastern Europe were first reported Nov. 2 in The Washington Post.

"There is a great deal of coherent, convergent evidence pointing to the existence of a system of "relocation" or "outsourcing" of torture," Marty said in the report to the Council of Europe, the human rights watchdog on whose behalf he is investigating.

"Acts of torture or severe viola-

dignity through the administration of inhuman or degrading treatment are carried outside national territory and beyond

tion of detainees'

the authority of national intelligence services," Marty said. He added that more than 100 suspects may have been transferred by U.S. agents to countries where they faced torture or ill treatment in recent years.

He complained there was enormous pressure on him to produce evidence of secret CIA prisons but that governments and the Council of Europe did not provide much cooperation. Jan SLIVA (AP)

Saddam Trial Postponed

Court abruptly delayed amid dispute over judge, lack of witnesses

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Judges in the trial of Saddam Hussein tried to remove a newly appointed chief judge Tuesday, a dispute that forced an abrupt postponement of the proceedings and deepened the turmoil in what was supposed to be a landmark in Iraq's political progress.

Saddam's lawyers were quick to capitalize on the disarray, saying the confusion provided fresh evidence the former leader could not get a fair trial in Iraq. Former U.S. attorney general Ramsey Clark, a member of the defense team, said the trial should be abandoned.

Since its Oct. 19 start, the trial has been defined by delays, chaotic outbursts by Saddam, the assassination of two defense lawyers and a judge's decision last month to step down after learning that one of the defendants may have been responsible for his brother's execution.

After a nearly five-hour delay Tuesday, court official Raid Juhi told reporters the hearing had been put off until Sunday because several witnesses and complainants were performing the hajj pilgrimage in Saudi Arabia and could not appear in court.

But two judges involved in the case told The Associated Press the real reason for the delay was disagreement over who should replace chief judge Rizqar Mohammed Amin, a Kurd who had shown patience and composure in dealing with repeated attempts by Saddam and others to delay the proceedings.

Train Crash Linked to Driver's Error

BIOCE, SERBIA-MONTENEGRO |
The driver of a train that plunged into a 330-foot-deep ravine in Montenegro may have failed to lock the brakes after he left his seat to make a repair, officials said Tuesday. At least 44 people were killed and 198 injured.

Authorities on Tuesday placed the injured train driver in police custody in the hospital, saying he was suspected of negligence.

The train was emerging from a tunnel above the Moraca river when it derailed on Monday near Bioce, a village close to Montenegro's capital Podgorica, police said.

The driver apparently stopped before the tunnel to make a repair, and failed to lock the brakes, a rail-way official, speaking on condition of anonymity, told The Associated Press. That set the train in motion without him in the driver's seat, the official said.

At least 250 passengers, many of them children returning from a ski trip, were believed to have been on the train when it crashed. (AP)

Canada's New PM In Brief Aiming for Change

But Conservatives' Harper will need alliances in legislature

OTTAWA | Canada's right-wing Conservative Party vowed to turn a minority mandate into a launchpad for change Tuesday, after ending the country's 12-year love affair with the scandal-laced Liberals.

Conservative leader Stephen Harper knocked out Prime Minister Paul Martin in Monday's election but must cosy up to Quebec separatists and left-wing New Democrats after failing to grab a parliamentary majority.

Martin formally tendered his resignation to Canada's de-facto head of state Governor General Michaelle Jean Tuesday, but will stay on for up to two weeks before Harper is sworn in.

He has also said he will stand down as the Liberal Party leader.

Harper, who put a fresh face on his prickly image and tracked to the center ground to dodge Liberal attacks, denies opponents' claims he is a closet extremist in league with

Raid on Oil Offices Sparks Gunfight That Kills 9 People

Camouflage-clad attackers raided an Italian oil company's riverside offices in Nigeria on Tuesday, sparking a gunfight that left nine people dead before assailants fled by speedboat into the oil-rich delta's waterways. The attack on Agip's offices in the southern oil center of Port Harcourt is the latest in a recent rash of violence across the restive Niger Delta that has killed nearly two dozen people and cut petroleum production in Africa's largest oil exporter. Self-Defense Bill Allowing People to Use Guns OK'd

Provoking protests, Italian lawmakers Tuesday approved a selfdefense bill allowing citizens to use guns and other weapons to protect their property at home or at work, as well as to save their own lives. Europe Left Shivering In Deadly Cold Wave

VIENNA, AUSTRIA | Vienna's subway tracks cracked, German authorities shut a key canal to ships after it iced up and a zoo moved its penguins indoors Tuesday as a deadly deep freeze tightened its arctic grip on much of Europe.

The killer cold wave, which has been blamed for more than 50 deaths in Russia, claimed at least 13 lives over the past five days in the former Soviet republic of Moldova, where authorities said another 30 people — many of them homeless were hospitalized with hypo-

Poland reported 11 deaths between Monday and Tuesday afternoons, raising number of deaths from the cold to 38 since Friday, police said.

Parts of Austria felt more like Siberia, with the mercury plunging well below zero on both Celsius and Fahrenheit thermometers. Vienna's subway system operator said morning rush-hour service was interrupted in some areas of the capital because the severe cold caused small tears in the welds on sections of track.

In Moscow, which was held in an icy grip for the past nine days, trollev buses and trams returned to full operation Tuesday, but recordbreaking electricity consumption continued to strain the Soviet-era power system. WILLIAM J. KOLE (AP)

Dad Charged in Day Care Shooting

Son was carrying the gun that wounded a 7-year-old Md. girl

GERMANTOWN, MD. | The father of an 8-year-old boy who accidentally shot a 7-year-old girl at a suburban Washington day care center Tuesday was arrested on gun charges and the boy was in custody.

John L. Hall, 56, of Germantown, was charged with leaving a firearm in a location accessible by an unsupervised minor, contributing to the delinquency of a minor, and possession of a firearm by a felon, according to Montgomery County police.

The boy, whose name was not released, was in police custody. Police have "initiated a number of charges regarding the juvenile's involvement with this incident," according to a news release, which said the child's case will be handled by the Department of Juvenile Services.

The girl was taken to Children's Hospital in Washington. Police said her injury was not considered lifethreatening. There were six children in the center at the time of the shooting, which occurred just before 7 a.m. No one else was hurt.

A University of Maryland senior died early Tuesday when his off-campus home caught fire. Firefighters found David Ellis, 23, of New York City, unconscious and not breathing inside a burning basement apartment. He was pronounced dead at a hospital. Council to Get Stadium Plan Friday

Mayor says arbitration helping to get ballpark talks back on track

WASHINGTON | Mayor Anthony A. Williams said his staff will submit by week's end a reworked baseball stadium plan to D.C. Council members

"In order to have it done in the time we need it done, we need to have it in by Friday," Williams told The Associated Press on Tuesday. "And then we're going to continue to work on the votes."

A stadium lease must be approved before D.C. can issue bonds to pay for building the ballpark. Major League Baseball, which bought the Montreal Expos in 2002, has said it won't pick a new owner for the team until a lease is signed.

Williams said mediation between the District and Major League Baseball has helped clear up key points cited by concerned D.C. Council members.

Va. Gay Marriage Ban to Face Final Vote in Senate

RICHMOND, VA. | Virginia Senators gave preliminary approval Tuesday to a proposed gay marriage ban that opponents say is so broadly worded it may have unintended consequences for all unmarried couples.

A final Senate vote on the proposed constitutional amendment is scheduled for Wednesday. The House of Delegates already has approved an identical measure, which would be placed before voters in November.

Virginia law already defines marriage as the union of one man and one woman. But Sen. Stephen Newman, R-Lynchburg, said a constitutional amendment would strengthen Virginia's position if federal courts try to force the state to recognize same-sex marriages or civil unions performed elsewhere.

Arrests Made in Crackdown Of Street Meter Tampering

In just 90 minutes on Monday, police arrested three men, ages 43, 47 and 52, for meter tampering on G Street NW near 17th and 19th streets. The men have been charged with felony destruction of property. Roughly 400 to 500 of D.C.'s 16,000 parking meters are out of commission at any point because of tampering. (AP)

GOP Bills Targeting Illegal Immigration

RICHMOND, VA. | Growing numbers of illegal and undocumented aliens, particularly in some of Northern Virginia's affluent suburbs, are fueling an ambitious package of immigration reforms in the House of Delegates.

Dozens of Herndon and Loudoun County residents, frightened and frustrated by a heavy immigrant influx in their communities and day-laborer centers established to help them find work, fanned out across Capitol Square Tuesday vouching for the bills.

This year, House Republicans are presenting an expanded menu of crackdowns on illegal immigrants like allowing state police to enforce federal immigration law; requiring employers to ensure that their workers are legally in the country; and

McDonald's Posts 53% Income Jump

Improving sales at fast-food chain send stock to 5-year high

CHICAGO | Strong momentum at its U.S. restaurants and improved sales in Europe helped McDonald's Corp.'s fourth-quarter income rise 53 percent, sending the chain's stock to a 51/2-year high Tuesday.

Up next for U.S. customers: three new products that McDonald's hopes will keep sales from slowing. Its spicy chicken sandwich, premium roast coffee and Asian salad all are due out by spring.

The fourth-quarter numbers all were foretold by the company in guidance a week earlier, but Wall Street continued to endorse McDonald's performance.

Shares rose 16 cents to $35.87 in afternoon trading on the New York Stock Exchange after reaching $36.31, their highest split-adjusted price since June 2, 2000, and have nearly tripled in value since pulling out of a nosedive in early 2003.

"To state the obvious, McDonald's is on a bit of a roll," Chief Financial Officer Matthew Strong sales at its U.S. outlets and improving results in Europe delivered a big boost to McDonald's bottom line.

Paull told analysts, citing the stock rise and 32 straight months of higher same-store sales.

Net income for the last three months of 2005 was $608 million, or 48 cents per share, up from $398 million, or 31 cents per share, a year earlier. Revenue rose 4 percent to $5.23 billion from $5.01 billion. DAVE CARPENTER (AP)

IBM Faces Lawsuit on Lack of Overtime Pay

SAN FRANCISCO | International Business Machines Corp. was sued in federal court Tuesday for allegedly not paying overtime to tens of thousands of rank-andfile employees.

The suit was filed in U.S. District Court on behalf of three current and former workers, and seeks classaction status to represent computer installers and maintenance workers for IBM throughout the United States.

Lawyers said they are seeking millions of dollars in back pay for employees of the world's biggest technology services. They are also considering punitive damages.

Experts speculated that the practice of not paying overtime to workers who deserve it was widespread in the technology industry.

Employees allege they were forced to work more than 40 hours a week, and were called in on weekends without getting overtime pay. Generally, executives, manager and high-level computer operators are exempt from being paid overtime premium.

The suit seeks compensation for the past four years for affected current and former IBM workers in California, and three years back pay for those in other states. DAVID KRAVETS (AP)

Virgin's new comics company looks to India for inspiration

GO EAST | Hollywood's search for new mythologies now extends to the Indian subcontinent.

One of the world's greatest stories, India's Ramayana, is being retold as a post-apocalyptic comic book, in "Ramayana Reborn," with an animated television spinoff for kids titled "The Seven Sounds."

This is the brainchild of the newly launched Virgin Comics and Virgin Animation, an entertainment partnership between British billionaire Richard Branson, bestselling New Age author Deepak Chopra, film director Shekhar Kapur and India's leading licenser of comic books, Gotham Entertainment Group, which has brought "Spider-Man" and "X-Men" to Delhi and Bombay, and launched a new Indian version of "Spider-Man."

"The Ramayan is the Eastern equivalent of the Odyssey. It is our 'Lord of the Rings," said Gotham Chopra, Deepak's 30-year-old son, a former Channel One TV personality, author and producer, and the new venture's chief creative officer.

The new companies, based respectively in New York and Bangalore, India, are using largely Asian-influenced comics as the platform to build a global media company.

This is the first major foray for Branson's Virgin empire into the world of comic books in 20 years, a thriving arena in America and the springboard for many Hollywood blockbusters.

"Despite the fact that India has a mature entertainment business, with movies and sports, it's had no comic business," said Adrian Sington, executive chairman of Virgin Books, who is supervising the multimillion-dollar investment for Virgin. "They're leveraging the talent of Indian creators and moving them like manga into the West. We're looking to help them

Virgin Comics is developing three separate lines of comics: Mayerick, based on the work of songwriters; Director's Cut, working with film directors (John Woo has signed on); and Shakti, which will focus on Indian content.

Shakti means "power" in Hindi, and titles in the line include "Devi," which means "goddess." Chopra describes the character as "Asia's first super-woman."

"She wears the different faces of the goddess," he said. "On one hand she plays the typical submissive Asian housewife; on the other hand she's Angelina Jolie." Another storyline concerns a 19th century English soldier who becomes a disciple of a sadhu, or Indian wise man, who trains him to become a spiritual warrior.

Deepak Chopra is very much involved, said his son. "My father is writing a novel on the life of Buddha. We're doing the companion graphic novel." RACHEL ABRAMOWITZ (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

Going It Alone

Indie sweetheart Jenny Lewis tries on a 'Rabbit Fur Coat'

TRANSITIONS | Jenny Lewis, the singer for the Los Angeles band Rilo Kiley, has played just one hometown show before releasing her first solo album, and wouldn't you know, someone recorded the unannounced set at the Echo last summer and now her new songs are circulating on the Internet.

So will her fans be tired of the music, even if the album was released yesterday?

That's just one more thing for the inveterate worrier to worry about, but as she closes in on her 30th birthday, she's finding that it's not as bad as it used to be.

"I still worry all the time, but there are moments throughout the day where everything feels all right," she said.

The word-of-mouth and early reviews for the solo album, "Rabbit Fur Coat," on indie-rock hero Conor Oberst's Team Love label, have been glowing, and though she's worried — there she goes again — that Rilo Kiley fans won't go for her album's vintage folk and country flavor, momentum had built around the release.

"Rabbit Fur Coat" is probably less conventionally accessible than Rilo Kiley's often catchy rock. But it's the kind of bold personal statement that could easily reposition this belle of the indie-rock ball as a presence in the wider pop landscape.

Given her penchant for diversifying her talent — she was a participant in the surprising success of the atmospheric alliance the Postal Service — and the fact that Rilo Kiley's co-leader Blake Sennett is also releasing a side project at the same time, it's natural to wonder whether the band is winding down and breaking up.

"I think everyone's main priority is Rilo Kiley. We're a family and we've been working 10 years to do what we're doing."

For Lewis, "It's just exploring different ways of writing songs. It's really fun to allow myself to become another character or disguise my personal flaws within another character that I create, or write with different people It's all just a part of what I like to do best, which is just write songs." MULTIMEDIA: Good Charlotte rock bros Benji and Joel Madden have teamed with a rock magazine editor to create their own film production company, and even have a movie in the works: The no-doubt uplifting "Valley of the Damned" will begin shooting this spring.

All Funny Is Relative

In 'The Aristocrats,' our best comic minds are in the gutter

DVD | If you're looking for a DVD filled with uncensored filth, your search for smut begins and ends with "The Aristocrats."

Last year's buzz-generating documentary about an old joke frequently shared among comics features no nudity and no violence. It's all talk because that's what the movie is about: The many ways in which roughly 100 comedians deliver the same bit. The laughs come from each comic's uniquely bizarre, grotesque and downright obscene approach to telling the "joke."

The bonus features include an occasionally diverting commentary track by director Paul Provenza and producer Penn Jillette; a skipable highlight reel; a featurette, in which some of the film's comedians share laugh-out-loud jokes unrelated to "The Aristocrats"; and 90 minutes of additional, often amusing footage from various comics. Anyone who appreciates the art of telling a dirty joke will take great pleasure in sifting through it all to get to the good stuff.

MOSTIMPRESSIVEBONUSPOINT: Kevin Pollak does a dead-on impression of Christopher Walken telling "The Aristocrats." In the extended footage, he becomes Albert Brooks. Even Pollak seems in awe of his Brooksian wit. "Literally, I'm listening to myself and saving 'Why am I never this funny?," he says at one point.

WEIRDEST BONUS POINT: The makers of "The Aristocrats" held a contest in which regular people could submit their own versions of The Joke. Video of two winners are featured on the DVD, including one of a guy from Indianapolis who dresses up as a fake cartoon character named Flapjack and proceeds to tell the joke to random people on the street. Television

IT'S NOT ENOUGH TO GET HOME: The producers of ABC's "Lost" are very happy with the show's cast, and they're showing love the only way they know how: with cash. The original cast has been offered nearly $80,000 per episode starting with the third season.

'Lost' Finds Jungle Dangers

ABC's castaways should be careful what they wish for

ISLANDS | Things on "Lost" (9 p.m.) have been a tad intense of late.

In just the past two weeks we've witnessed Eko's horrific life story and the disintegration of Jack's marriage. And let's not forget a seven-hour "miracle" surgery ending in failure and death.

So wasn't it fun to watch Hurley and Charlie kicking back in the mystery bunker and slapping some unrecognizable albums on the turntable? The best moment arrived when Sayid popped into the room and declared, "This music is thoroughly depressing." Any show that has a former member of the Iraqi Republican Guard acting as a music critic is okay in my book.

CLEANSED: Mr. Eko performs an island baptism for Claire's little Turniphead.

On tonight's "Lost," folks begin to worry that Charlie has returned to his drug problems. And so far they don't even know about his secret stash of statues. Sawyer will encourage Hurley to pursue his "desert island" crush.

Of course all of this takes place with our knowledge that Grizzly Adams and his ominous posse still lurk in the bush. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNIDCATE)

ON TV TONIGHT

JUDGE NOT, SIMON

It was impossible to ignore the mean streak in last week's AMERICAN IDOL (8 p.m., Fox). Like a schoolyard bully, the show ridiculed the simple-minded and savaged perceived "sissies."

LET'S MAKE HIM KING, TOO Jamie Foxx has everything else, why not his own special? JAMIE FOXX: UNPREDICTABLE (8 p.m., NBC) features supporting talent from the fields of soul, pop, gospel and hip-hop.

ON THE SIDE OF THE LAWLESS

Fans of self-assured female characters should not miss tonight's VERONICA MARS (9 p.m., UPN) when the high-school private eye gets a visit from an FBI agent played by "Xena" herself, Lucy Lawless.

WARRIOR AGENT: Lucy Lawless gets in on the "Veronica Mars" shenanigans.

CULT CHOICE

A poet (Javier Bardem) survives oppression in Castro's Cuban dictatorship and escapes to New York in the 2000 drama BEFORE NIGHT FALLS (10:35 p.m., IFC) from painter/director Julian Schnabel. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Skeleton Coach Dropped Over Harassment Scandal

The U.S. Olympic Committee will not allow Tim Nardiello to coach the American skeleton team at next month's Turin games, despite his reinstatement by the sport's national governing body after an arbitrator found no evidence to support claims he sexually harassed two team members. The USOC said its investigation found that Nardiello failed to exercise appropriate judgment with his athletes, violated ethical codes and the USOC Code of Conduct. (AP)

The NBA Store will feature a special edition Kobe Bryant T-shirt and jersey to celebrate his recent 81-point performance against the Toronto Raptors, the second-highest in league history. WHAT NOW? Coach Gary Williams and the Maryland Terrapins will try to make the NCAA Tournament without Chris McCray.

The Terps' Depth Charges

Minus McCray, No. 18 Maryland must rely on reserves vs. Ga. Tech

TERPS HOOPS | The Maryland Terrapins were undefeated during a brief two-game home stand last week, but on Monday they suffered a huge loss. And they never even stepped on the court.

Guard Chris McCray, a senior captain and the team's leading scorer, was ruled academically ineligible and will miss the remainder of the season.

His absence leaves the No. 18 Terrapins (13-4, 3-2 in the Atlantic Coast Conference) to face the heart of the ACC schedule without the heart of their team. That test begins tonight when Maryland visits Georgia Tech (9-7, 2-3). McCray was the team's second-leading scorer as a junior and was averaging 15.3 points through the season's first 17 contests.

The Terrapins still have bullets in their gun. Seven different players have led the team in scoring, five have led in rebounds and five have led in assists. Junior Mike Jones is likely to move from his sixth-man role into the starting lineup. Jones has shown flashes of brilliance on offense but has lacked consistency. Depth also becomes an issue, and guards Sterling Ledbetter and Parrish Brown are likely to see more minutes.

Senior Nik Caner-Medley is the lone remaining captain. The forward will be charged with steering the Terrapins beyond a two-week stretch that has seen the loss of McCray and the one-game suspension of another senior — forward Travis Garrison — in the aftermath of charges for second-degree assault and a fourth-degree sex offense.

"Nik's not a real vocal guy but I've always felt the best leaders are guys who put it out there on the floor when it's time to play," coach Gary Williams said. "I think he's showing by how hard he plays how important this year is to him." DEREK TURNER

McCray a 'One-Time Situation'

Williams takes the blame for co-captain's academic suspension

TERPS HOOPS | Maryland basketball coach Gary Williams on Tuesday accepted responsibility for allowing leading scorer Chris McCray to become academically ineligible, but expressed hope that the senior — and the 18th-ranked Terrapins — could cope with the adversity created by the "one-time situation."

The school announced Monday that McCray would miss the rest of the season for failing to adhere to NCAA academic standards. The suspension begins Wednesday, when Maryland (13-4) faces Georgia Tech on the road.

"If you're ineligible now, it's probably because you just didn't want to do much of anything."

Michael Wilbon says Chris McCray is to blame for his academic suspension | Today's Post, Sports

(I) The Washington Post

"This is the first time in 28 years as a head coach I've lost a player halfway through the season," Williams said. "It's something that I personally take responsibility for. I feel bad about it. My job now is to make sure that Chris does a good job in school this semester and is successful with whatever he wants to do after school is out."

Williams said his staff was aware that McCray was struggling in school, but couldn't do enough to keep him eligible.

"You don't expect it from a senior. Having been here for 3 ½ years, you know how the system works. But at the same time, it can happen," Williams said. "I look at this as a one-time situation. We have a lot of things in place that help our student-athletes ... but we also have to have people that are willing to do their part, too. This is a two-way street." DAVID GINSBURG (AP)

Artested Development: Trade Is Off

NBA | The Ron Artest trade to | Sacramento is off.

The Pacers had reportedly agreed to deal the volatile forward to the Sacramento Kings for Peja Stojakovic, but Indiana coach Rick Carlisle said Tuesday night that it wasn't going to happen, after all.

"There is no trade right now and there may not be a trade," Carlisle said before Indiana played the Cavaliers in Cleveland. "There's nothing to talk about because there is no trade."

Artest

ESPN and The Indianapolis Star had reported earlier Tuesday that the deal was imminent, pending league approval.

The deal would have ended a lengthy standoff between the Pacers and Artest, who was deactivated in December after requesting a trade and was suspended most of last season for his role in one of the worst brawls in U.S. sports history. TOM WITHERS (AP)

Davenport was bounced from the Australian Open by Justine Henin-Hardenne.

A Major Loss for No. 1 Davenport

TENNIS | It has become an alltoo-familiar feeling for Lindsay Davenport.

The top-seeded Davenport extended her Grand Slam title drought to six years with a 2-6, 6-2, 6-3 Australian Open quarterfinal loss to Justine Henin-Hardenne on Tuesday.

To get out there and play well, then slowly get worse as the match went on — it's a bad feeling to have when you leave," the 29-year-old American said.

After winning the Australian Open in 2000, Davenport slipped out of the top 10, talked about retiring, then revived her career by regaining the No. 1 ranking and making finals here and at Wimbledon last year.

But the constant throughout the past six years has been a failure to add to her three major championships.

She took on a new coach, Dave DiLucia, for this season and said Tuesday "there's obviously still a lot of stuff that I need to get better."

"I guess I've got the opportunity now the next few months to try and make those improvements," she said. John Pye (AP)

Lemieux Hangs Up Skates

Heart problem leads to the retirement of hockey's 'Super Mario'

NHL | Unlike many aging superstars, Mario Lemieux's problem wasn't that his heart was no longer in the game. Rather, his heart no longer allowed him play the game the way he had always played it.

Lemieux, his Hall of Fame talent eroded by an ongoing heart problem, retired from the Pittsburgh Penguins for the second time Tuesday in a long, productive yet star-crossed career, but this time was different.

This was the last retirement, and the tears in his eyes and the quiver in his voice said so. "This is it." Lemieux said, "and it hurts."

The 40-year-old Penguins ownerplayer learned in early December he has an irregular heartbeat that can cause his pulse to flutter wildly and must be controlled by medication. He returned Dec. 16 against Buffalo, but the problem flared up again and he has not played since.

"If I could play this game at a decent level, I'd come back and play," Lemieux said. Lemieux is also experiencing side effects with his medication, and he may undergo surgery to correct the problem..

Still, the 13-time All-Star returned so many times from injuries and operations, setbacks and layoffs, personal crises and even cancer, this decision came as a surprise. After all, this was a man who missed a month of the 1992-93 season with Hodgkin's disease, yet easily won the scoring title.

"It's just tough to see him leave," said rookie Sidney Crosby. "He's had such an impact on the game. I don't think anyone ever should have to deal with so much." ALAN ROBINSON (AP)

Minority Hirings Still a Concern

NFL | This month, for the first time, an NFL team traded for a black head coach.

Otherwise, this year's hirings have been a disappointment for those who have worked to bring more diversity to the league's coaching ranks. Nine out of 10 openings have been filled, with no net gain in the tally of six black head coaches.

"We have some things to point to that we think are successful," lawyer Cvrus Mehri — who three years ago along with the late Johnnie Cochran released a report slamming the NFL's hiring practices — said Tuesday at a forum on hiring practices in Washington. "That being said, we still believe that there's a doublestandard. We still believe it's an uphill battle, it's not a level playing field, and there is evidence of racial bias in the hiring cycle." Musgrave Leaves Redskins

After organizational shakeup in D.C., coach takes offer in Atlanta

REDSKINS | Michael Vick has a new position coach after the Falcons hired Bill Musgrave to tutor the quarterbacks.

Falcons coach Jim Mora wrote, "Hired Musgrave!" in an e-mail to The Associated Press on Tuesday. He offered Musgrave the job as quarterbacks coach after an interview.

Musgrave, 38, spent 2005 as quarterbacks coach of the Washington Redskins, who reorganized their offensive staff last Thursday with the hiring of former Kansas City coordinator Al Saunders.

Musgrave was the University of Virginia's offensive coordinator when Vick's backup, Matt Schaub was named the 2002 Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year.

The No. 1 overall draft pick of 2001, Vick ranked 25th in passer rating (73.1), which was five points lower than his final number in '04. $Only three \, quarter backs \, threw \, more \,$ fourth-quarter interceptions this year than Vick, who had five.

The Redskins allowed Musgrave to pursue other opportunities now that Saunders has the title of associate head coach-offense. Head coach Joe Gibbs, assistant head coach Joe Bugel and offensive coordinator Don Breaux already are heavily involved with Washington's playbook, even though Gibbs said Monday that he will relinquish control to Saunders. Jeffries Gets His Shot With Wizards

Guard earns spot in team's starting lineup due to defensive ability

WIZARDS | Perhaps the Wizards need re-define some of the standard positions of basketball: Although Jared Jeffries is currently starting as the team's shooting guard, it might be more accurate to call him a nonshooting guard.

Jeffries — who averages five shots a game — made the switch from small forward earlier this year as coach Eddie Jordan took radical steps to get a lineup on the court that was willing to play defense.

"Jared is textbook — he showed how to keep the defense up, with feet moving," Jordan said.

It is that commitment to defense that has put Jeffries in Jordan's continued good graces and in a permanent spot in the starting lineup — despite decreased numbers this season almost across the board. including points per game, shooting percentage, and rebounds.

"Jared's stats don't show up in any book, and he doesn't get enough credit for the things he does. He's one of those players that, the more time you give him, the better the things that happen out there," point guard Gilbert Arenas said.

Jeffries will need his defensive skills to be in top form Wednesday as the Wizards (18-21) visit the Boston Celtics (17-24). Jeffries will have to deal with star guard Paul Pierce, and everyone else will have to do their part — for a change.

'We need a total team defense. That's what we've been lacking," center Brendan Haywood said. CHRIS MINCHER (EXPRESS)

JACK TAYLOR SIGNATURE CARS

RE-USED CARS: Ford is undertaking steps to make recyclable cars, the Detroit News reported. The goal of "Piquette Project" — named for the street where the Model T was first made — is to develop "renewable, clean and safe vehicles."

More Tragic Than Hip

The HHR tries to lure voung drivers with a return to the 1940s

In its search for fresh, edgy attitude that will resonate with Generation iPod, Chevy has turned to the Truman administration. The styling of the HHR — it stands for "Heritage High Roof" — is inspired by the 1949 Chevy Suburban.

This is a most curious source of nostalgia, since most kids in the 18-to-30 age bracket — the happy hunting grounds for a $20,000 crossover van — wouldn't know a '49 Chevy Suburban if they had carnal knowledge of one.

This vehicle isn't exactly cultural bedrock. In this respect, the HHR has little in common with retro riffs based on universally recognized automotive icons.

If you reverse engineer the styling of the HHR to discern what sort of sensibility signed off on it, you would have to conclude that the person is older, a lifetime car enthusiast, for whom the '49 Sub is not esoteric. Taken a step further, considering the exceptional headroom of the HHR, you'd be right to conclude that person is also very tall.

You probably won't have a clue where the 2006 Chevy HHR's design came from, but your gramps might have flashbacks to driving his Suburban around 57 years ago.

The HHR wants to capitalize on a sentiment that just doesn't exist in large measure in the mass market.

The HHR is also intended as a breeching charge into the customand tuner-car culture; one of the first preproduction cars went to West Coast Customs, which did a very appealing chop-top version. Soon after, Chevy handed off four HHR's to high-end customizers for a "build-off." Two of these shops proceeded to rip the four-cylinder, front-drive guts out of their cars and drop in rear-drive V-8s so that the cars would perform like the hot rods they are supposed to

Maybe the HHR will find favor with import-tuning kids and car customizers, but it's unlikely. The HHR is troubled with inauthenticity. Custom-car building and hot rodding are mechanical folk arts. Their very appeal lies in their perversion of the ordinary into something extraordinary, irreverent and ornery. Hot rodding is a kind of insurgency that cannot be commodified.

But enough about the styling. What's left under the retro-themed skin of the HHR isn't much to talk about. For a car that's supposed to be a kind of hot-rod starter kit, the HHR handles like a retirement community golf cart. The electricpower steering glides from lock to lock with barely any resistance, and any communication from the tires is strictly by telegraph. The braking and acceleration are tolerable and the body roll isn't.

In the end, even with its iPod connections, the HHR couldn't hit hip with a hand grenade. DAN NEIL (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

Automotive expert PAT GOSS owns Pat Goss Car World, Inc., a local car repair company. He chats monthly on washingtonpost.com/cars.

Are you fully against remote starting systems?

Yes.

My catalytic converter was recently found to be failing gradually. It seems this problem afflicts Acuras in my age/mileage range quite a bit, and Honda has been extending "good will" warranties to help cover the cost. Have you seen this problem much? If so, what kind of coverage has the manufacturer been giving?

We see the problem from time to time. What I have not seen is manufacturers giving any help to people with the problem.

My brake, charge and lights instrument panel warning lights have been coming on. They stay on anywhere from a few seconds to a few minutes. When they come on, the heater blower slows down and, at night, the headlights and dashboard lights dim slightly. The car starts and runs fine. What's your opinion?

Check the alternator.

One New York cabbie sheds light on her job with an online journal

One time, a Hare Krishna passenger gave her a foil-wrapped ball of chocolate he said was infused with herbs and spices. Then there was the time a guy gave her $140 for a $4.10 fare. She once dropped off a stripper at a date to see the musical "Wicked."

Welcome to the world of Melissa Plaut, a New York taxi driver who chronicles her chaotic, adventurous job in the blog "New York Hack."

With words and digital photographs, Plaut offers a glimpse into the life of the New York cabbie, from the locker room where she and other drivers wait to begin their shifts to the pit stops they make and the gridlock and grueling 12-hour night shifts they endure.

Dirt accumulates under her fingernails from handling money all day. She eats hot dogs and brings peanuts for snacking. Once, she had to make an emergency bathroom stop at a passenger's home.

"The whole way back to the city, I was filled with gratitude, mainly for the fact that I didn't pee in my pants, but also for the reminder that sometimes humanity can, indeed, be humane," she wrote about the incident.

So far, Plaut said, nothing she would consider "really outlandish" has ever happened while behind the wheel. "Nobody had a baby in the

Plaut is an unlikely representative for the roughly 42,000 licensed taxicab drivers in New York: Just 197 are women. She hears some variation of "Oh, a female cab driver!" up to 30 times a night.

After graduating from the University of New Mexico in 1997, Plaut moved to New York, where she got a job as a writer and copy editor at an advertising agency.

She started driving a cab about a year ago after being laid off, which she says was a blessing. "I needed to get out of there, but it was too comfortable to just quit," she said.

She couldn't bring herself to return to office work, so she stopped trying to figure out what she was going to do with her life and decided back of the cab," she said.

But her cab has gotten "egged," and another cabbie once punched her window. She said she has never been really frightened by a passenger — except the guy who got in wearing a ski mask on a cold winter day.

After a few minutes, he took it off. "He's like, 'Everyone's so afraid of this ski mask," she said. "I'm like, 'Yeah, it's scary."

Traffic accidents scare her more. Her mirror got clipped by a city bus, and she once saw a taxi get hit by an 18-wheeler truck.

It is difficult work, and Plaut said she doesn't like it. The blog, which she started in August, "has really helped me cope with the job."

It has also given her readers a taste of the Big Apple. One reader, "Danielle," posted: "Maybe if I ever make it out of Iowa and get there you could be my cab driver!" to "treat it as an adventure."

Last month, she wrote about a high-speed car chase she "unwittingly drove into" on the way back from the airport with a passenger from Chicago. "I turned to my passenger and said, 'Welcome to New York!" she wrote. ELIZABETH LESURE (AP)

Land

Former air base will be one of the country's biggest urban parks

It was an opportunity that made developers drool: Nearly 5,000 acres of untouched land up for grabs smack in the middle of one of the most densely populated and built-out counties in the nation.

But seven years after the El Toro Marine Corps Air Station closed, the flat, nondescript land in Irvine, Calif., is instead on the verge of becoming The Orange County Great Park, one of the largest, most amenity-filled open spaces ever planned for the United States.

"It's incredible. In this county, with the traffic and the population, having a large green area like that is enormously attractive," said longtime resident Dan Carlsson. "There'll be nothing like it anywhere in the world."

An architectural design firm was selected this week after members of LANDING FLIP: Goodbye Air Force runways; hello museums, an open-air theater, sports areas, wildlife corridors and ocean.

Saving Space

the park's nonprofit board and the Irvine City Council took a $50,000 tour to renowned urban parks in Barcelona, Paris and New York.

As conceived, the Great Park would be larger than New York's Central Park and about equal in size to San Diego's Balboa Park and the Golden Gate Park in San Francisco. Tentative plans include a museum district, an open-air theater, a sports park and a wildlife corridor that will unravel a belt of green from the Cleveland National Forest to the shores of the Pacific Ocean. The park's first phase could be completed in two years, officials said.

The green space is a victory for residents who fought for more than a decade to keep the base from becoming another airport in a region crowded with jet traffic.

"This land is very expensive down here, and they didn't want an international airport," said Marsha Burgess, Great Park Corporation spokeswoman.

In 2002, 12 years after the fight over El Toro began, voters approved a ballot measure clearing the way for open space. Three years later, developer Lennar bought the 4,700acre base from the Navy.

More than $1 billion will have changed hands before the process is complete, including nearly $650 million paid to the Navy and $400 million to the city, in a complex arrangement in which 1,300 acres were set aside as parkland.

"This is an opportunity to do something really special," said Ethan Kent, vice president at the Project for Public Spaces in New York. GILLIAN FLACCUS (AP)

Finally, Barneys opens outposts in the District

Barneys New York Co-Op

The Collection at Chevy Chase 547I-C Wisconsin Ave. | 30I-634-406I Mon.-Wed., Sat. IO a.m.-7 p.m.; Thurs.-Fri. IO a.m.-8 p.m.; Sun. I2 p.m.-6 p.m.

SHOPAHOLIC CONFESSION ONE: I'd been so excited for the Barneys New York Co-op to open, I kept driving slowly past the store's construction site like some weird stalker. While Co-Op doesn't carry the hautest — and priciest — gals' and guys' brands found on the lower floors of Barneys' Madison Avenue flagship, the main store's "wayward offspring" doles out somewhat more affordable jolts of Big Apple style: Lauren Moffat's flippy skirts for her, Buttaro's Brokeback Mountainesque boots for him. As Sarah Jessica Parker once told Vanity Fair, "If you are a nice person and you work hard, you get to go shopping at Barneys. It's the decadent reward."

STYLE: Co-Op's clothing and interiors look more NYU (or Georgetown) than Upper East Side (or McLean): stovepipe-leg designer jeans for her, retro rock T-shirts for him, and Marc Jacobs and Theory all around. Men's shoe and women's jewelry departments trump those of most D.C. boutiques, with finds like guys' sneaks in rad colors and Thea Grant's showpiece necklace ($225) of chains, charms and a silver "Rve" tag from some vintage bar cart. The two-level, 9,000-square-foot bazaar hawks women's merch and high-end candles and bath products downstairs and men's stuff upstairs. Creative director Simon Doonan's wacky, urban vision dominates, meaning touches both chic-ish (turquoise mannequins, a mermaid table) and freakish (Lucite cubes filled with forlorn stuffed animals à la The Island of Misfit Toys).

PRICE: Barneys and bargain start with the same letters, but fugged-aboudit — the prices mirror high-end boutiques. But a recent, end-ofseason sale turned up a dreamy A Common Thread skirt for $139 and a men's shirt by Trovata for $69. SERVICE: Shopaholic confession two: I've sometimes felt snubbed by Barneys salesclerks in New York. But the Chevy Chase staff seems to gobble happy and helpful pills. I got the royal treatment from modelesque Amy, who chirped, "I just love Barneys creative director Simon Doonan's quirky touches abound, such as the peculiar gopher? badger? pig? adorning the table above, and psychedelic mannequin heads, left.

clothes, don't you?" before bringing me a stack of jeans in a flatteringly small size. On a busy Saturday, another salesperson greeted me with an "I remember you!"

MINUS POINTS: For a spot with a "Sex and the City" rep, Co-Op has a surprisingly blah selection of women's shoes.

BUREAUCRACY: Returns within 30 days with receipt; store credit otherwise.

BOTTOM LINE: Shopaholic confession three: I'm no longer pining for Barneys NYC. And when a second Co-Op opens in Georgetown on Feb. 23, there will be even more chances to ogle (and sometimes buy) cool clothes far south of the Big Apple.

Costume Changes

The Greatest Show on Earth just got a makeover. When the 136th edition of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus opened earlier in January, the costumes had a completely new look. The first thing the audience sees is Jennifer Fuentes, the "American Idol" finalist who fills the ringmaster role. She wears a red-andwhite-striped, strapless dress with blue sequins that fans out into a semicircle, mimicking the old-fashioned circus tent. Later, stunt riders appear on their horses in only gold vests and black pants—no shirts. Not all audiences will see this revamped 136th edition this year, though. Ringling Bros. has three touring units moving across the country at once. (AP)

Love Is... Risk Assessment

I have been close friends with a former colleague for two years. I always used to look at her as just a friend, but now I'm physically drawn to her. I know you might say I should tell her how I feel. After all, if we are so close, then our friendship would last. But that is entirely false. If she doesn't share my feelings, she will never be as comfortable around me as she has been. I don't want to lose a friend, and I don't know if distancing myself temporarily is the right move either. - DC REGULAR READER

At the risk of sounding like that Econ professor with the armpit stains, this is really just a risk assessment. Yes, if you express your feelings and she loses her lunch, things will be less than stellar. But if you don't tell her, you won't have a chance of being more than friends. So. Gamble much?

A good bettor knows his odds: Pay close attention to your interactions and you'll probably have a clue about whether she shares your feelings, and whether she'd make the first move if she did. And bear in mind that you need not hoist a radio on your shoulders and blast Peter Gabriel to make a move. Test the waters subtly with a couple of extra-affectionate compliments.

As for distancing yourself, unless you really believe a brief break would cool your feelings - a hard sell, unless you're just a plot point on an aging NBC sitcom - you'd just be sacrificing enjoyable time with her. So gather your chips, take advantage of the free cocktails and decide if it's worth it to wager.

My boyfriend and I have been together for three years, and we are at a crossroads. He has applied to graduate schools all across the country, and I'm in a job I hope to stick with for the next several years. Lately we've been fighting because he doesn't seem to figure me into his school plans as much as I'd hoped. He even let slip that his "number one" school is in California. I am in a specialized field where D.C. is the place to be. Any advice about how to address this? - ANONYMOUS

Think for a minute about how his California school may be "the place to be," and how you may not be figuring him into your job plans as much as he'd hoped. I'm playing devil's advocate not to be offensive, but to remind you that this relationship has two people's needs in it, and ideally you'll meet in the middle. That doesn't mean moving to Peoria, but it does entail both of you being honest about how much you're willing to sacrifice. So he takes less than his Number 1 school, you take less than your Number 1 city, you find the least common denominator and both take Number 32, or vou invest in an airline and agree to temporary long-distancehood. The only thing that matters, if you're going to stay together, is that it feels OK to both of you.

CFC Organizations:

If your ad were here, it could be seen today by tens of thousands of federal employees.

If your agency benefits from Combined Federal Campaign donor designations, make your appeal in Express. Thirty-six percent of federal workers in the area ride Metro, the primary distribution point of Express. That means your lifeblood is riding, reading, and quite possibly waiting to see your message right here before they make their CFC pledge.
